The Honorable City Council
City of Detroit
1340 CAYMC
Detroit, MI 48226

Dear Council Members:

I am honored to have another opportunity to address this Honorable Body. This report highlights problems with service delivery based on data collected from constituents who contact the Office of the Ombudsman.

As you will see, issues which are generally referred to the Environmental Affairs Department, including illegal dumping, rodent infestation, and other blight violations have been on a steady increase over the past two years. In 2007, we reported that the Environmental Affairs Department generated the most complaints with 21 percent of all complaints received; whereas, in 2008, the slight increase of one percent is significant because it shows that the neighborhoods aren't any cleaner.

Complaints referred to the Buildings & Safety Engineering Department also increased significantly. In 2007, the complaints represented 11 percent of the total; now, in this report, that percentage has jumped to nearly 16 percent. These departments share responsibility for code enforcement, and recommendations for more efficient operations are included in Section II.

In FY 2007-2008, the Office of the Ombudsman predicted that the volume of contacts would increase by more than 100 percent over the previous reporting period of March 1, 2006, through February 28, 2007. In actuality, the number of complaints received exceeded 200 percent. Based on this data, our target for FY 2008-2009 is 21,000 contacts versus 13,000 in FY 2007-2008.

For your information, a complete listing of each complaint, along with the status of the complaint can be found in Section III. A pie chart is also included. As always, if you have questions, I'd be happy to discuss these very important issues with you.

Respectfully submitted,

Durene L. Brown

Section II

Unsecured, open & dangerous
4/21/2008

The Problem: Vacant Structures

The key to neighborhood restoration is already in place and has been since City Council adopted Ordinance No. 18-03 Chapter 9 Article I By Adding Article I, Titled “Detroit Property Maintenance,” Etc. Sec. 9-1-49, on July 9, 2003. However, possibly due to funding restrictions or policy implementation, the law that requires the Buildings & Safety Engineering Director or the Public Health Director (language specific to ordinance) to secure vacant and dangerous buildings and collect trash and illegal dumping has morphed into a departmental policy that extends these services to city-owned properties only, in just about every case. In contrast, the ordinance addresses the conditions of all properties.

This practice contributes to the erosion of our neighborhoods, which is evidenced by the majority of callers who complain about vacant properties that are open and dangerous, and illegal dumping that is not collected. An important step in getting a handle on neighborhoods is for the Detroit City Council to insist upon compliance with its local ordinances by devoting resources to the re-implementation of departmental compliance and curb further deterioration resulting from years of decay and neglect.

Children and families — the backbone and future of our community — deserve clean and safe neighborhoods, and taxpayers have every right to that expectation. On nearly every street and in nearly every neighborhood, there is at least one vacant, open, and dangerous property within several hundred feet of inhabited properties, according to a commentary by John E. Mogk, Wayne State University law professor and expert in urban planning. See Exhibit I.

Criminal activity is commonplace in areas where vacant properties are located:

- Children must play in front of and walk past dangerous buildings. Children who are trying to grow up in these neighborhoods also grow up around trash, and in too many cases, this start of life brands our children with indelible impressions that cause major detours in setting and achieving life goals.
- Senior citizens start calling the Office of the Ombudsman immediately following Independence Day, concerned about vacant properties especially vulnerable to fires and theft during Halloween.
- There are media reports about dead bodies found in vacant properties, injured emergency response workers, and this report documents (in Section III) the discovery of dead dogs left in vacant structures following illegal dogfights, according to the police.

Recommendations for Vacant Structures

1. Full compliance with Ordinance No. 18-03 Chapter 9 Article I By Adding Article I, Titled “Detroit Property Maintenance,” Etc. Sec. 9-1-49, including all necessary funding.
2. Restore funding for demolitions. The attached chart shows a 57 percent decrease in demolitions and 8.5 percent decrease in funding for FY 2008-09 compared to FY 2005-06. See Exhibit II.
3. Amend the ordinance and require property owners to use building materials authorized by the city to secure vacant properties. Photographs of a property that is secured in such a way is included in this report. See Exhibit III.

Legislative Update: H.R. 3498

In December 2007, the City Council passed a resolution in support of House Resolution 3498. As of March 2008, the legislation has been divided into two measures, neither of which addresses grants for demolitions that was initially proposed, instead, the focus is funding to offset the foreclosure crisis. Qualifying Detroiters may benefit from the legislation if it passes; however, funding for properties that are in need of demolition, is not the intent of the new bill.

The Problem: Lack of Solid Waste Management

The number one complaint received during this reporting period is uncollected trash and illegal dumping. It's not news that there is illegal dumping on corners and vacant lots or inside abandoned houses and commercial buildings on nearly every street in almost every neighborhood. Collection is the problem, and there is no visible or effective solid waste management program that is addressing the tons of discarded mattresses, tires, shopping carts, boats, sofas, construction debris, roofing materials, road signs, dirt piles, yard waste, car parts, and toilets.

The city has tried to remedy the situation with policies targeting illegal dumping, inspections, and fines. However, the policies have not motivated the city to clean up the mess after a ticket is written. For example, new rules about bulk pickup limit residents to one cubic yard or not more than 1,000 pounds. The problem is that when more than one cubic yard is set out, none of it is picked up, not even the one cubic yard allowed.

Recommendations for Comprehensive Solid Waste Management

- 1 Full compliance with Ordinance No. 18-03 Chapter 9 Article I By Adding Article I, Titled "Detroit Property Maintenance," Etc. Sec. 9-1-49, including funding.
- 2 Implement the "Recommendation for Solid Waste Management Planning" which was initially submitted to Council in June 2006. Found in Exhibit IV.

The Problem: Solid Waste Management Disposal beyond July 1, 2009

The budget submitted by Mayor Kilpatrick addresses the debt service on Greater Detroit Resource Recovery Authority (GDRRA), but fails to address the future collection and disposal needs for the city. Currently, municipal solid waste is collected by city employees, delivered to the transfer station, and processed at the resource recovery facility.

Detroit taxpayers have been paying off a large debt that will disappear from the city's budget in 2009, yet we are still completely uninformed about future collection and disposal decisions. Important questions loom for residents, property owners and landlords, business owners, labor, and other stakeholders.

The institution of the $300 trash fee was an unexpected expense for property owners, and the method of determining that cost was not communicated. Therefore, this agency has concerns about additional fees that could be levied to offset unknown costs related to an undetermined solid waste management program, including disposal.

Based on an excerpt of the response from GDRRA Director John Prymack, dated April 10, 2008, GDRRA will continue to operate even after debt service has ended. A board of five members made the decision that will affect hundreds of thousands of people who have had little opportunity for public comment. Also note that the current operating agreements and corresponding ordinances that assign independent control of the facility exclude policy input from the City Council.

Recommendations

1. Research the feasibility of changing the composition of the GDDRA Board to include City Council representation.
2. Implement the "Recommendation for Solid Waste Management Planning" which was initially submitted to Council in June 2006. See Exhibit IV.

Detroit must head off home crisis

Protect neighborhoods from abandonment due to lending woes

John E. Mogk

Bold action addressing abandonment is needed to cope with Detroit's subprime lending crisis that is causing widespread foreclosures and abandonment throughout the city. While Michigan's innovative "Save The Dream" program is an important step in refinancing adjustable rate loans, much more intervention is needed to address the crisis.

Abandonment in many cases is inevitable, and the city needs to create a comprehensive program to control it.

Twenty-five percent of subprime loans default even before rates reset. Most subprime borrowers have no equity in their homes because of minimal down payments, borrowing against their homes to reduce consumer debt or falling market values, which means refinancing or resale is not an option when a move is required.

Advertisement Abandonment is the result. Detroit has a faltering economy with a heavy concentration of subprime borrowers, placing it at the center of the national storm. Estimates are that $1 billion of risky subprime loans were spread throughout the city in 2006 alone.

Avoid a replay of the 1970s

Unfortunately, many subprime borrowers will not be reachable or eligible for refinancing. And a large number of homes have already been vacated for other reasons, including job loss.

Ensuing collateral damage to neighbors and neighborhoods is becoming highly visible.

The situation mirrors the Housing and Urban Development debacle of the 1970s in which tens of thousands of homes were abandoned.

Current abandonment is only the beginning. The crisis will not peak for another 18 months. By then, every resident in Detroit may be within 1,000 feet of one or more vacant homes.

Mortgage bankers reportedly see a silver lining in the statistic that four out of five subprime loans are still being paid. However, the president of the Federal Home Loan Bank of New York says: "One in five homes on the block abandoned, in disrepair, with the grass grown, becoming a potential drug den and flop house is pretty bad deterioration."

What can Detroit do?

- Appoint an agency to promote maximum participation in the state's "Save The Dream" program -- a taxable bond-financed plan to help homeowners refinance high-rate or troubled loans through the state's housing development authority -- and oversee the coordinated response of community groups and public and private-sector organizations to abandoned subprime housing in Detroit.
- Formulate a plan to quickly inventory, maintain and reuse abandoned homes.
- Prepare for supervision of widespread purchase and rental of foreclosed homes by investors.
- Encourage lenders to refrain from making adjustable rate loans where neighborhood housing values are stagnant or falling; providing mortgages with less than 10 percent down payment, unless refinancing current foreclosures; and extending credit without fully informing borrowers of the risks and costs involved.

Detroit does not have an enviable record in addressing abandoned housing during the best of times. The subprime crisis will dramatically increase the number of abandoned houses throughout Detroit during the next several years.

Establishing a comprehensive, coordinated program to control abandonment is the most important action that the city can take in protecting its neighborhoods against the subprime lending crisis.

Recommendation for Solid Waste Management Planning

DURENE L. BROWN, CITY OMBUDSMAN

"Getting Problems Out of the Way, So That Progress Can Occur"

Recommendation for Solid Waste Management Planning

The adoption of the FY 2006-2007 budget means that a new solid waste collection plan will be implemented for more than 200,000 households in the City of Detroit. Residents and commercial entities will be limited to Courville container service, and bulk pick-up will be restored quarterly. This plan is designed to save the City money and parallel collection service in the suburbs.

The problem with the plan is that collection service in the City won't be comparable to collection service outside the City. In Detroit, collection equipment will be solely dedicated to trash and garbage collection; whereas, in the suburbs, residents are required to separate waste so that three trucks collect trash, recyclables, and yard waste separately.

There is currently no state law that requires communities to recycle, and in Detroit, residents aren't encouraged to recycle because those items tend to "burn hot" at the Greater Detroit Resource Recovery Authority (GDRRA). The same materials that burn hot have been prohibited from landfill disposal since March 2004 when Public Acts 34 and 35 of 2004 were enacted. On the other hand, a curbside recycling program would cost the City additional money because the City would need to purchase new equipment and train drivers. GDRRA operates a recycling drop off center for a few hours on Wednesdays and Saturdays, but that is the extent of recycling services available to residents.

There is a state law that bans the landfilling of yard waste. At one time, when the City collected bulk monthly, residents could separate yard waste from trash and set the yard waste out with other bulk items to be collected separately. Now with a leaner bulk collection program, residents don't have a yard waste collection option. It is of no consequence at the moment because solid waste in Detroit goes to GDRRA, not a landfill.

However, if the City gets to the point where GDRRA is closed and landfilling is the only disposal option, yard waste will have to be separated in order to comply with Section 324.11506(7) of Part 115, Solid Waste Management, of the Michigan Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Act, 1994 PA 451, as amended (Act 451) which has been in effect since March 1995. Landfill operators will not accept yard waste or plastic beverage containers mixed with trash and risk fines resulting from non-compliance. Municipal solid waste collected in the City must be separated from yard waste, and a yard waste provision will be stipulated in any landfill agreement.

The Budget Department reported that the $80 million-plus debt service for GDRRA would be paid in full in the year 2009. This means that the City has a small, 18-month window to develop an environmentally-sound, solid waste collection and disposal plan.

It is for these reasons that I am recommending that the City Council and Mayor appoint a Blue Ribbon Committee to research, study, and develop a solid waste management plan for the City of Detroit by the end of FY 2006-2007. Over a period of 12 months, this committee could produce a workable plan, one year before being implemented, so that a structure to receive viable alternative plans for a comprehensive solid waste management program can be solicited; a full-blown education program can be developed; and a close estimate on the cost of these services can be determined. An emphasis on an education program would help to ensure that residents would be completely prepared for a newer, more sustainable solid waste management program.

Solid waste management programs vary throughout the state and the country.

The Blue Ribbon Committee can look for best practices and determine what works for the City of Detroit:

- Some communities have single haulers.
- Some communities have subscription service.
- Some communities collect waste using a volume-based system.
- Some communities offer curbside recycling, and some don't.
- Some communities ban plastic bags for yard waste collection.
- Some communities do direct billing.
- Some communities add collection fees to water bills.
- Some communities own and operate landfills; Detroit does not.

Lack of transportation is an issue.

The City operates six drop-off sites for bulk items. These sites are open Tuesday through Saturday from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m. during the winter and from 8 a.m. until 8 p.m. in the non-winter months. Accessibility is not an issue, but getting there is a problem.

Residents who do not have transportation do not have the means to get to the drop-off sites. Even residents who do have transportation are not willing to pack unwanted bulk items into their vehicles. For senior citizens and persons with disabilities, few options for bulk disposal represents an added hardship.

The majority of Detroit residents are law abiding citizens.

Obviously, this is a time of shrinking resources and competing interests. As a result, illegal dumping has taken center stage, and bulk item collection has been placed on the back burner. Bulk pick-up and illegal dumping should not be confused. Households everywhere have a need to dispose of bulk items from time-to-time, and residents want to be able to get rid of junk legally.

Perhaps, the City has been lenient over the years when there were no restrictions placed on the amount of bulk that could be set out. Solid waste management collection plans outside the city typically include the pick up of one bulk item every week without additional charges, excluding white goods. The Blue Ribbon Committee could recommend a bulk collection program with similar restrictions.

Education is critical.

A well-organized community education program is essential. A major part of the committee's responsibility will be to develop a campaign and promote awareness through the use of mailings, Public Service Announcements, Web Broadcasts, etc. In the event that landfilling is the only option, residents must be educated about yard waste and plastic beverage container separation, or any landfill agreement will be jeopardized.

The Blue Ribbon Committee is really Green.

The Green Ribbon Committee for the City of Detroit needs to include a variety of stakeholders. Members should be committed and represent the following:

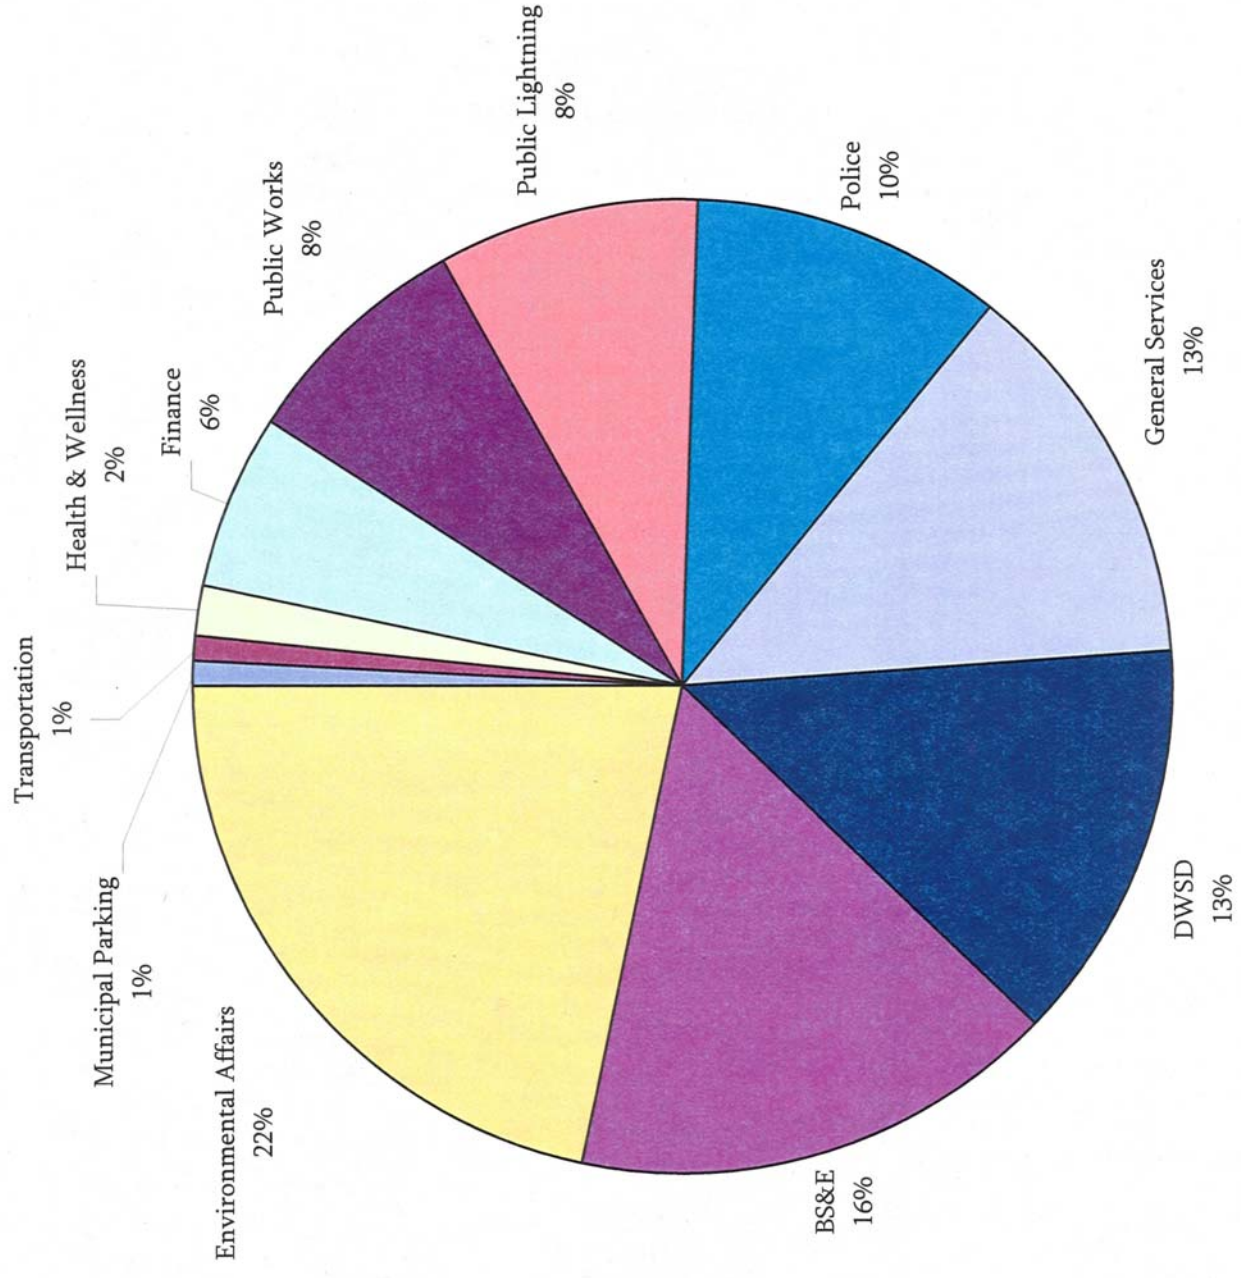

- Department of Public Works
- Department of Environmental Affairs
- Planning & Development Department
- Finance Department
- City Planning Commission
- Department of Transportation
- Developers
- Community Development Corporations
- Private Sector
- Environmental Groups
- Neighborhood Associations
- Block Clubs
- Labor Organizations
- Industry Experts
- Realtors

One full year of work is recommended because the task is monumental. The committee can be charged with providing input on a Request For Proposal from landfill operators that recognize that the solid waste management needs of the City are more complex than a simple disposal replacement for GDRRA.

The current plan is only temporary.

Budget problems and outdated policies are responsible for the knee-jerk reaction to solid waste collection concerns in the City. As a City, we have an opportunity to develop a collection and disposal plan that will meet the needs of a community now and in the future. Therefore, the recommendation from the Office of the Ombudsman is that the City Council and Mayor act now to adequately address the solid waste management needs of the City of Detroit.
